

- 2)
- 3) In SQL Server, when you use the GO command, it tells the server to execute all the commands you've typed since the last GO. If it's the first GO or the start of your session, it includes all the commands you've entered so far. Essentially, GO marks the end of a group of commands to be executed together.
- <https://learn.microsoft.com/en-us/sql/t-sql/language-elements/sql-server-utilities-statements-go?view=sql-server-ver16>